Hi Kathleen,

Ya this is very good if you are thinking about the regd given to students who have done their degrees from english speaking countries. We need alot of nurses and some students working in hospitals are really very best at providing care to the patients during their placements and its a right step if you will take. University should take the IELTS exam during enterance of course not when they done their whole course because it is not an easy course that a normal student can do. So ,i strongly agree to give opportunity to the nurses who studied in Australia and other english speaking countries.

thanks

Kind regards

Dr.Suhani
